AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me. HORACE FAIRBROTHER." Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup. — A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours, Mrs. EMMA GEDNEY." 150 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effective remedy for croup and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE." Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN." Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRADON." Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

ABERDEEN, O.

A Comstock Hero.

The reporter had an interview with Mr. Van Dusen. He is a rather slim man, about five feet seven inches tall, with a thin, dark beard, prominent nose and lantern jaws. Indeed, he could stand very well for a reduced photograph of Brother Jonathan. But Van Dusen is no a Yankee. He is a native of Michigan, and 47 years of age. The reporter found him the hero of the day in the wash room of Fitzpatrick's boarding-house in Lower Gold Hill, rubbing soap on his hands, and wholly absorbed in the occupation. He looked up with some surprise from his basin in the wooden sink when the reporter spoke to him and said he wanted to interview him. Van Dusen is not a talkative man, and it was only in response to the journalist's constant questions that the story of his adventures was drawn from him piecemeal. While giving a bit of information as to his perilous journey, Van Dusen would pause between splashes in his basin, turning his dripping countenance for a moment, and then in laconic sentences resume his ablutions. He was rather amused than otherwise that a newspaper should think it worth while to send a reporter to ask him about such a trifle as going into a drift 1,400 feet long, 2,150 feet below the surface, filled in part with almost scalding water over three feet deep and loaded with poisonous gases that had slain two men who had made the attempt before him. There was no affectation about his unceremoniousness of his having done anything heroic. It was absolutely real.

"Oh, no; I'm not exhausted," said Van Dusen, as he rubbed his face vigorously with the towel on the roller. "I'm feeling chipper—never better in my life."

He encountered the bodies of Bennett and Callahan. Both were lying on their backs. He merely paused as he came to each corpse and passed on. "Then," said Van Dusen, "I got to the cooling-house and saw the boys."

He seemed to think that the statement of this fact furnished all the information that was necessary.

"They were glad to see you, of course," suggested the reporter.

"Yes, but they were a darned sight gladder to see the ice in my machine."

He had to leave his lantern out in the drift, as there was a tremendous draught in the cooling-house.

"It was pretty dark in the cooling-house," said Van Dusen, "and when I went in the first thing I asked was how many of them were alive. They said the whole seven, and I said I was mighty glad to hear it. 'What do you fellows want most?' I says, and they said grub and ice. They did go for my ice. [Mr. Van Dusen chuckled at the recollection.] One chap—it was so dark I couldn't place him—laid his arm across his breast and began hauling it out of my machine and piling it up on his arm. I guess they knew what had happened to the two boys that went down in the morning, for they asked me if there were any dead bodies in the drift. I said there wasn't, for it wouldn't have done 'em any good to know. They had seen the lights that the boys carried, and they went out kind of sudden when they fell, of course, so it wasn't hard to guess what had happened."

"They had fixed things in the cooling-house and were pretty comfortable, managing to get tolerably cool air and water. They wanted all the air they could get, of course, and one of 'em sings out to me as I was going to tell 'em on top to work the compressor. I thought, perhaps, that there might be one or so in the crowd that was near giving in, and I asked if any one wanted my knapsack to try to make the rifle for the shaft, but they wouldn't hear of it, so I started back. Bennett walked down the drift a ways with me. He had his head on him and wasn't scared or anxious a bit, so far as I could see."

On the return trip one of the rubber sledges of his knapsack got away, and he had to leave it on one. It was the last time he saw his knapsack, and his only guide as he floundered through the last 300 feet of hot water was the faint gleam of the candles of the men at the station. One of the doctors at the mine said that not one man in a thousand would have achieved the feat accomplished by Van Dusen, and that it was marvelous that he should apparently suffer so little physically and mentally from so terrible an ordeal. Van Dusen at 6 o'clock was back in the hoisting works, standing around with his hand in his pockets, taking a keen but calm interest in all the work that was being done toward the rescue of his fellow miners.—Virginia City (Nev.) Enterprise.

USEFUL AND SUGGESTIVE.

—J. R. Dodge, the eminent statistician, says that "there is no crop in the United States, grass green and dry excepted, that equals the value of corn. It is worth fifty per cent. more than wheat, and twice as much as cotton."

—The family of Christopher Iander, a farmer in Steuben county, New York, ate of the flesh of some sheep which had been mutilated by dogs. The father and one child died in great agony, and all other members of the family showed symptoms of having been poisoned.—Chicago Herald.

—The revolution which has taken place in every department of industrial life in the last half century has brought new demands, introduced new questions, created new possibilities, and as a result of all this the highest measure of success, as individuals or as a nation, can only be gained by a thorough acquaintance with the laws which govern its workings.

—Did you ever think the world is always within a year of starvation? The stock of food on hand at any time is only a part of the last year's crop. The stock of wool from which the present warm clothing was made was mainly raised last year. And last year's crop of cotton is nearly all gone. The world does not lay up much in store.—Iowa State Register.

—Apple Omelet This is a delicate dish and is a nice accompaniment to boiled spare-rib or roast pork. Take eight or ten large tart apples, pare them, and stew them in a preserving kettle until they are very soft. Mash the apples so that there will be no lumps, add one cup of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter, and cinnamon or other spice to suit the taste; let the apples cool be ore putting in the beaten yolks of four eggs stirred well together, beat the whites to a stiff froth, add to the apples, then pour in a shallow pudding-dish, place in a hot oven and brown.—N. Y. Times.

—M. Pasteur, of France, says that the grass grown over the graves of cattle that die of splenic fever is a source of infection to cattle feeding upon it. He points to the agency of ear-b-worms in carrying the germs of deadly bacteria from buried carcasses to living animals. Having introduced worms into a pit which had contained the carcasses of cattle that died from splenic fever, he filled it with earth. In a short time he procured from the intestines of these worms the means of producing the disease in its worst forms by inoculation. He also showed that the worms, by casting out over the surface earth containing the bacteria germs, gave the disease to all cattle that grazed over it.

FOR REPRESENTATIVE.

We are authorized to announce J. D. KFHOF as a candidate for re-election to the office of Representative for Mason County in the General Assembly of Kentucky, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

The American Register wisely takes ground against the proposed scheme to place the telegraph lines of the country under control of the government and thus sensibly comments: "If the government should assume entire control of the telegraph system of the country, an enormous lever would be thereby placed in the hands of the party in power, which could be used for partisan purposes. What an influence might be exerted through the telegraph, by those having control of it, for party ends! Throughout the country telegraph offices and stations are scattered broadcast, and in each of them from one to over a hundred persons are employed. What a bait to allure the ever watchful anxious placemen whose voice and vote, and often even their honor, are at the disposal of that political party which will feather a nest for them.

In a country where the government is administered by a political party for any length of time whatever, the party in power should be deprived as far as possible of all means of perpetuating its rule by corrupting partisan influence. The history of this country shows that the Post Office, the Internal Revenue, the Customs, and even the Judiciary Departments have been, are, and in all probability will in the future be used for the advancement of party interests. It is deplorable to think that this should be so, and of course we hope for better things, but absolute purity in politics is a condition only to be expected with the millennium. In the meantime, instead of promoting the accomplishment of his end as far as possible is it wise to place within the gift of politicians several thousand additional places to be filled by sycophants and office-seekers who will cling to the party in power, whatever its baseness and corruption, as long as they can draw sustenance from the she-wolf which nurses them?

If we believe in a Republican form of government; if we are satisfied with the system as originally designed for the rule of this country, and desire to preserve it in its integrity, we must steadfastly resist all endeavors to throw into government hands those rights and privileges and franchises which belong to the people, and to the people alone. We must persistently oppose every attempt to concentrate in the general government those powers which are the birthright of the country at large, for the policy of our system is not in favor of centralization, Alexander Hamilton to the contrary notwithstanding.

The government now has, it is said, a solid case against the Star-Routers and their conviction is considered certain.

The Flood of 1788-'89.

Commercial-Gazette.

In one of John Cleves Symmes' letters to Colonel Dayton, dated at North Bend, May, 1789, he says that when he landed at that place he discovered that the country thereabout had been entirely inundated, and to such an extent had the waters prevailed he was obliged to cast about for a site on which to lay out his town.

Symmes also states that the season was remarkable for the amazing height of the water in the Ohio, being many feet higher than had been known since the white people had come into Kentucky.

Further on in his letter he says that when he left Limestone (Marysville, Ky.) on January 29, 1789, he embarked with the bow of his boat "just even with the high bank" on which his house was built at that place. On reaching Columbus, at the mouth of the Little Miami, Symmes states that he found the entire place under water. The soldiers in the Block House had been driven from below to the loft and thence by boat to a place of safety. But our house was on a high spot of ground escaped the flood. And this puts me in mind of something else—a memorandum made by Judge Goforth. He was an intelligent man, capable of taking observation and noticeably exact in whatever he recorded. Here's what he says concerning the depth of Ohio, and the flood of 1788-'89: "September 25, 1789—Mayor Stites, old Mr. Bealer and myself took the depth of the Ohio river, and found there was fifty-seven feet of water in the channel, and that the water was fifty feet lower at that time than it was at that uncommonly high freshet last winter. The water at the high flood was 112 feet." I know that Mr. Cist doubted the worth of that memorandum, and in one of his publications (1841) discredited the Judge's measurements, but Mr. Cist does not give any substantial facts to disprove the same. I have never seen any reference to the flood of 1788-'89 in the papers, and send you the historic matter for what it is worth. High water seems to be a prevailing topic of conversation just now.

How to Dry Wet Houses.

Commercial-Gazette.

CINCINNATI, February 17, 1883.—Let me offer the suggestion to parties with inundated premises, that in drying them out they will accomplish more in twenty-four hours by leaving all doors and windows open, in addition to having good steady fires, than they would in a week by having fires alone and keeping the premises closed. This is for the purpose of allowing the evaporation of vapor to escape, otherwise it settles down again in the form of dampness.

A SPECIAL to the Louisville Commercial from Grayson says:

The web of testimony, is conclusively winding around Craft's neck by degrees, which is observed and felt by the prisoners. An officer of the Louisville Legion told to-day that Neal was on the point of confessing the crime last night, when the guard appeared and interrupted him. The impression amongst witnesses and others here who are acquainted with Neal and Craft is that the former would confess if kept out of the latter's company thirty-six hours, and the belief is he will make a clean breast of the matter anyhow if Craft is convicted. This impression is gaining ground from tips dropped by the prisoner's guards in camp. Neal is under the complete control of Craft and afraid of him.

Kendall's Spavin Cure.

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain it effects and does not blister. READ PROOF BELOW.

From Rev. P. N. GRANGER,

Presiding Elder of the St. Albans District.
ST. ALBANS, VT., Jan., 20, 1880.

DR. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In reply to your letter I will say that my experience with Kendall's Spavin Cure has been very satisfactory indeed. Three or four years ago I procured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cured a horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ring-bone was forming, I procured a bottle of Kendall's Spavin Cure and with less than a bottle cured him so that he is not lame, neither can the bunch be found. Respectfully yours,
P. N. GRANGER.

Perseverance Will Tell.

STROUGHTON, MASS., March 10, 1880.

B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with Kendall's Spavin Cure, one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me it will be very great.
Respectfully yours, CHAS. E. PARKER.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetrating and powerful to reach a every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargement, such as spavins, splints, curbs, callous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast. It is now known to be the best liniment for man ever used, acting mild and yet certain in its effects.

Send address for Illustrated Circular which we think gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy has ever met with such unqualified success to our knowledge, for beast as well as man.

Price $1. per bottle, or six bottles for $5. ALL DRUGGISTS have it or can get it for you or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price by the proprietors, DR. B. J. KENDALL & CO., Enceburgh Falls, Vermont. 187d.

SMALL-POX has broken out at Mt. Sterling.

The trial of Craft, at Grayson, will close this week.

The river receded about twelve inches last night.

The steamer Resolute and barges left for below this morning at three o'clock.

The Augusta Chronicle estimates the loss at that place by the flood at $100,000.

A horse belonging to Mr. Abner Bowling, broke its leg Tuesday afternoon and had to be shot.

The canvass for Representative is beginning to grow warm. Both candidates are actively at work.

It is reported that a silver mine has been discovered in Elliott county in the cliffs of a branch of the Big Sandy River.

Messrs. A. C. Spahr & Co. are putting a fence around their brickyard. It will be three-fourths of a mile in length.

MASON GREEN, a well known colored man of the Mayslick neighborhood, died a few days ago at the age of 85 years.

The time of the meetings of the Kentucky and Ohio Trotting Circuit has been re-arranged thus: Maysville, Ky., May 15 to 18; Cincinnati, May 22 to 25; Dayton, May 29 to June 1; Springfield, June 5 to 8; and Columbus, June 12 to 15.

The San Antonio, (Tex.,) Daily Times says:

Mr. Charles E. Calvert received last night via the I. and G. N. railway from the Mason county, Ky., stock farm, a fine blood bay trotter, "Lady Armistead," sired by Almont, and dam by John A. Clark, chief. "Lady Armistead" made this trip of 1,500 miles alone leaving Maysville, Ky., January 16th.

This animal was sold to Mr. Calvert by Col. W. W. Baldwin.

Mrs. PENELOPE PELHAM, a lady eighty-three years of age, at the residence of Mr. W. C. Pelham, on the river above the city, attempted to go on a raft from the house which is surrounded by water, to the road near by. She accidentally missed her footing and fell with part of her body on the raft and her head in the water. She was unable to extricate herself and would have drowned except for the assistance of a little son of Mr. Pelham, who fortunately chanced to be at hand.

At Flemingsburg, as a black man named Denny was engaged on the farm of E. L. Singleton, he came across the body of a female infant who had been born alive. The head was crushed flat. Esquire Palmer summoned a jury, and Lev. Farr (colored) gave her evidence as follows: The child was hers; she lived with Jack Reeves, a colored preacher, and his wife. When the child was born Mrs. Reeves dressed it, and Reeves then took the child, stuffed its mouth with rags to keep it from making a noise and left the house with it, and she never saw it afterward. Dr. Wall proved the child was born alive and had breathed. Reeves was at once arrested at his house and committed to jail. His wife is very sick in bed, so she was not arrested. The girl Farr is also in jail.

PERSONALS.

Points About People Here and Elsewhere.

Mr. Holt Richeson is laid up at home with the rheumatism.

Miss Rebecca King, of Stone Lick, is visiting Miss Maggie Helmer, of this city.

Mr. W. P. Harvey, of Harrodsburg, has been visiting his father Mr. J. P. Harvey, at Rectorville.

Greenberry Gallagher sold out at auction, Tuesday.

Samuel Wood sold off his property last Saturday. He will move to Bourbon county, next week.

Small grain is looking better since the warm and spring like days of last week.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stiles one of our oldest citizens was buried last Friday. She was greatly esteemed by all who knew her.

Mr. William Yates, another esteemed citizen, died on last Thursday evening, and was interred at Hillsdale cemetery on Saturday. Their loss will be deeply felt by the community at large.

MAYS LICK.

Whooping cough is getting pretty thick in this place.

Several snakes were killed during the few warm days last week.

We regret to learn that Mrs. Anthony Laytham is worse and not expected to live.

Dr. M. H. Davis has had a very sick horse for several days. Dr. E. Groves is waiting upon him.

The English sparrows are taking possession of martin boxes in this vicinity. They are a nuisance.

Mr. Jesse Calvert sold his tobacco to Mr. Winn Wells for $14.50 from the ground up. The bad leaves to be thrown out.

Elder W. H. Tiller, who has accepted a call from the Christian Church at this place will be with us on next Sunday morning the 25th inst to commence his year's labors among us. He comes highly recommended.

A. G. Willson and wife spent Monday night at the Stonewall House. They leave in a few days for their farm near Vanceburg, Lewis county. We regret very much to lose Mr. Willson he is a good citizen and a clever gentleman.

ROMEO.

STONE LICK.

Mrs. Stephen Harrison is in feeble health.

Mr. Crosby moves just as the roads are passable.

Mr. Parsons gave the youngsters a hay last week.

James Ensor visited his daughter the first of the week.

Mr. True gave a party in honor of Miss Emma Durant.

W. T. Calvert has purchased a blooded bull calf. He has two now.

Andrew Ring sold a lot of two year old cattle to J. H. Wallingford.

The ball at Mr. Farrow's was a success, both with the guests and host.

There was no preaching at Pleasant Hill Sunday. Back water was the cause.

Elder J. H. Wallingford will put off his appointment Sunday. Bad roads the cause.

Mrs. Collins has employed Albert Wright to oversee her farm. It is said right wrongs no man.

Mrs. Collins was visiting Mrs. Wallingford the first of the week. She is a pleasant and entertaining lady.

A lady trying to scare a cat out of the house kicked the bed rail in place of the cat. She thought, well, d—n it.

The mother of Mrs. J. H. Wallingford has been dangerously ill, but, we are happy to say, at the last account she was some better.

There were several items appeared in your last weekly over our Non-De-Plume that we did not write. We hope writers will give preference to their own offspring. We ask no honor only that we are entitled to.

"Why can't we get married," was the anxious inquiry of some young ladies not long since. Well, the young ladies are willing, the persons are willing, the old folks are willing, but the boys, oh, where are they, and the tobacco buyers. We think batchelors should be taxed heavily for the support of old maids.

Mrs. Jenkins, widow of the late Ezekiah Jenkins, died on the morning of the 20th inst., at her residence in the eastern portion of the county. She has spent a long and useful life, beloved by all who knew her. She was a member of the old school Baptist Church. Her funeral took place at her residence Wednesday morning. Elder J. H. Wallingford officiating.

J. A. JACKSON & SON, of Mayslick, are the sole agents in that place for all of J. C. Ayer & Co.'s celebrated patent medicines and many other valuable preparations, among them T. B. Smith's Kidney Tonic. Call and get a bottle. f17.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine for every one in the Spring. Emigrants and Travelers will find in it an effectual cure for the eruptions, boils, pimples, eczema, etc., that break out on the skin—the effect of disorder in the blood caused by sea-diet and life on board ship.

It is a good rule to accept only such medicines as have, after long years of trial, proved worthy of confidence. This is a case where other people's experience may be of great service, and it has been the experience of thousands that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is the best cough medicine ever used.

DIED.

In Macon, Ga., on Ash Wednesday, February 7th, 1883, Mrs. FLORENCE LEE GIBSON, wife of Mr. Weston Gibson, of Charleston, S. C., daughter of the late Richard Henry Lee, and Mrs. Eliza, now of Baltimore. She was a grand daughter of the late John Armstrong. Mrs. Gibson was a native of Maysville and has many relatives and friends in Kentucky who will read this with sincere regret. (Cincinnati Commercial-Gazette please copy.)

A Lesson in Natural History—The Dodo.

"Professor, what is a Dodo?"

"There are several species of the Dodo, my son, and there used to be several more before the fool-killer cut the country up into regular districts."

"Please describe some of them to me?"

"With pleasure. You have probably attended a Sunday-school picnic given on the banks of a lake or river? Six fat women, two girls who wear eye-glasses, and a very good boy who licks make up the party to take a ride on the water. As they are ready to shove off, the Dodo appears and keeps them company."

"What is he like, and what does he do?"

"He is generally a soft-headed young man under twenty-three years of age, and he stands up and rocks the boat to hear the fat women scree and to induce the girls to call him G-George."

"Does the boat upset?"

"It does."

"And is everybody drowned?"

"Everybody except the Dodo. He always reaches the shore in safety, and he is always sorry it happened. He is sometimes so affected that it takes away his appetite for lunch."

"And is anything done with him?"

"They sometimes rub his head with a cheap brand of peppermint once and turn him out to grass, but no one ever thinks of doing him harm."

"And the next species?"

"The next species is a youth from sixteen to twenty. He labors under what the ancients termed the swell-head. He gets out the family shot-gun or revolver to show off. He points it at some boy or girl to see 'em shiver, and after he has testified before the coroner that he didn't know it was loaded the affair is looked upon as ended."

"Is this species on the increase?"

"Well, no. The friends of the victims have got to making such a fuss over these trifles that the didn't-know-it-was-loaded Dodo isn't quite holding his own."

"What is the third species?"

"The third species belongs to the female sex. Of course there are two sexes of the Dodo. She buys arsenic to kill rats, or corrosive-sublimate to discourage bed-bugs, or Paris green to give cockroaches a hint to skip, and she leaves the packages on the pantry shelf alongside of her baking-powder. She may keep 'em separate for two or three days, but it isn't over a week before the family begins to lose their appetite and hire a cheap boy to go for a doctor and a stomach-pump."

"And is she sorry?"

"Oh, yes. She didn't mean to, you know; never thought of killing the family; always lived happy with her husband; had entirely forgotten that he had any life insurance; was in a hurry and didn't stop to look."

"And is there yet another species of Dodo?"

"Several others, but we haven't time to take 'em in detail and give full particulars in each case. The man who thinks the best horse wins is a Dodo. The woman who gets into society on the strength of her false hair, small waist, painted eyebrows, chalked cheeks and cramped feet is a Dodo. The man who thinks he can take comfort on a steamboat excursion—the woman who weeps over the heathen—the girl who writes poetry on sunsets—the young man looking for a necktie to become him—the old man who marries a young wife—why, it would take me an hour to mention them all. Put away your books in a careful manner and we will walk out and see some live specimens of the Dodo. I know of one who has engaged to deliver a Fourth of July oration, and perhaps we may get a shot at him."

—The Boston Transcript states that "it is the fashion at Williamsburg (Dutchtown), New York, for the bridal parties to walk in procession through the streets, all attired in wedding garments. Custom there has fixed the law that the bridesmaids must retain their robes to be worn as shrouds when they are buried. Married women may officiate as bridesmaids, but their attire must be black, though they are permitted to wear flowing white veils and white slippers."
